Kipo Tetpon - Inupiaq

Growing up in the remote Alaskan community of Unalakleet, Kipo Tetpon remembers "...my parents having wonderful conversations, talking with friends and relatives about how it was years ago; stories of truths and myths, ghost stories that really happened and tales handed down from generation to generation... Stories of life and death in the cold north country years ago. These are the things I think and feel as I reveal myself in my work as an Inuit (Eskimo) sculptor."

With a personal and distinctive style, Tetpon's sculptures capture the spirit of her heritage and offer a glimpse into the culture of the Inupiat people of Alaska.

Jonas Faber - Inuit

Carving in a beautiful mottled soapstone, Jonas Faber infuses his figurative sculptures of people and animals with strength, energy, and motion. His mythological subjects include Sedna, the Sea Goddess, and Tomraq, the powerful and protective Greenland spirit.

An established artist with a style unmistakably his own, Faber explores different facets of his heritage with creativity and skill.
